

What do I need to do for it?

Developing an asset management plan is an opportunity to review service levels and determine “What do we need to do?” A service level review may include the entire operations program for an asset type or may be limited to certain maintenance activities. The complexity of the review would be the municipality’s choice. OGRA has divided road operations into 7 categories that will facilitate either a review of the entire road program or certain maintenance activities within roads.
